JOAQUIM
Joaquim
 A partly fictional, partly historical account of the events that conducted Joaquim José da Silva Xavier, alias Tiradentes, to become an independence fighter and national hero. The film shows an anti hero's transformation from unthinking colonialist henchman to revolutionary. He will later lead the resistance movement to the portuguese domination called "Inconfidência Mineira".

VAZANTE ENTRÉE LIBRE
Vazante
 Upon returning from a trading expedition, Antonio discovers that his wife has died in labor. Confined to a decadent but desolate property in the company of his aging mother-in-law and numerous slaves, he marries his wife's young niece, Beatriz. She finds solace in the displaced and oppressed inhabitants around her. Exploring the fraught intersection of feminism, colonialism, and race that has persisted across centuries and continents, VAZANTE is a haunting and stunning solo directorial debut from Brazilian filmmaker Daniela Thomas.

LIQUID TRUTH
Aos Teus Olhos
 What if the only evidence of a crime is the testimony of a parent translating the words of her child? Rubens is a carefree, charismatic swimming instructor who finds himself accused of displaying inappropriate affection toward one of his students by the boy's mother. Other parents and colleagues are only too eager to condemn him. Jabor's incisive, unsettling debut maintains an intriguing, tension-filled air of mystery even as it exposes our own propensity to pass judgment.

DESERTO
Deserto
 A small group of artists travels the Brazilian backlands presenting a show. Upon arriving in a small village, they find an abandoned city with houses, a church, and a fountain spouting clean water, like a miracle of a biblical desert. The artists decide to settle in the village and start a new community, assigning themselves different roles from those they have played throughout their lives. This new arrangement, however, will reveal these artists the worst vices of the civilian life.
